Tax unanimity of men of all par and opinions is remarkable in the rebellious states, as well as in the doyal part of the Union, although by no means see complete. Here the distance element con-sists solely of recognised scoundrels and skulking desperadoes, who make themselves and their sentiments known with impunity, so long as they do their treason secretly, and talk it quietly, or print it at their own expense. No bitberto reputable citizen-unless there may to here and there one among sojourners from the S ath-has any occasion whatever to dis-guise his contiments, for all are heartily of one mind. Neither are the enemies of the country under any necessity to do so, for there is no compaision here without due process of law, apon evert evidence of crime. Thus we have the means of guaging the treason that lurks among us, and its pitiable show moves on'y contempt, although we well know that it is strong enough and malignant enough to cut all our throats, if the city were in the possession

But the greatest contrast between the rising of the people in the Norts and that in the South, lies in the spentaneous and instantaneous manimity of ail parties here, in a state of perfeet freedom, as compared with the gradual and reluctant falling in of all the respectable men the rebellion, ander the pressure of a reign Imost of terror. Weeks and months passed, After the initiation of legislative treason, before TREMANS TYLER Wise, and the governors of several of the confederate states, were sucked into the movement. It is but as yesterday, that DUNKIN, MAGRATH and many others, took their seats in the South Carolina Convention as conservative men and opponents of the mad fally to which they afterwards succumbed. Even Governor PICKENS and JEFFARSON Davis were but lately in the rear of the raid The reluctance of Georgia, the defrauded and suppressed popular vote of Louisiana, the miserable handful . who vote i Texas out, and the bare-faced usurnations in the border states, are still more impressive and conclusive facts.

When shallow observers prate of a parallel between northern and southern unanimity, enthusiasm and sincerity, facts like these should be remembered, with the irresistible inference which tollows that the southern people are not our real enemise-that the rebel conspirators and asurpers and only to be suppressed, and the states proper will all be again gladly ranged under the banner of the Union.

Flordism at Montgomery. THE escaped robbers and traitors from Mr. Bucmanan's Cabinet, who took the lead in forming the rebel government at Montgomery, seem to be not more honest in their new sphere than they were in their old one. Their thieving propensities have not been evercome by their professed "devotion to the South." Toe New Orleans Deka, one of their own organs, says of them:

At this point their noblest achievements seem At this paint their society activements seem to be the restation in and appain meast to office of the veries backs of faction, he waste of much money, and the purchase of an old Sjanish busk, which a state survey had already condended as rotten and worthless, for the enormous sum of fifty three thousand deliars, of which political favorities of course had a big slice.
